

Dr Sunanda Mukherjee is Associate Professor of English at Kidderpore College, University of Calcutta. She did her Master's in English Literature at Visva Bharati, Santiniketan and was the University topper. She was awarded a Ph D degree for her dissertation on postwar English marriages, in 2010 by the Department of English, Visva Bharati. She has received research fellowships and grants from the University Grants Commission. Her academic interests include Gender Studies, Postcolonial Studies, Gandhian Studies, 19th & 20th century English and European Literature. She has presented papers in conferences in India and abroad. She also has published articles to her credit.

She is the Founder and Chief Editor of Intersections : A Journal of Literary and Cultural Studies.

Dr Mukherjee takes special interest in people with special needs. She has been closely associated with the Higher Education for People with Special Needs (HEPSN) cell of her college and is a member of the Kolkata Society for Empowerment of People With Special Needs (KSEDA).

Contact: sunandaeng@kidderporecollege.com

sunanda.mukherjee@gmail.com